

THE LANE FAMILY

Missionaries to Honduras

Dear Pastor and Prayer Supporter,

Reflecting on the year 2025 make unmistakable God's handprint in our lives and in the labor of ministry. Though at times, circumstances seemed dark with distractions, busyness, or heartache, we can see that they serve as a testament to His ever-present guidance. We are so privileged as His children to grow under His nurturing grace and the Spirit's gentle prodding. The more unknown the path, the greater the necessity to trust Him as our source of light and strength. Never before was this truth so evident as was shown through these past months.

As we drew closer to the holiday season, the tasks grew in number and the busyness increased. After much preparation in a short time, the day of the Christmas service arrived. It was the first time we had ever hosted the Christmas service at the conference center property, and by God's grace, it went smoothly, and many visitors were in attendance. It was a wonderful time of worship, music, food, and fellowship, and we look forward in expectation to what God can do the following year.

As easy as it is to allow tasks to become our main priority, we strive to remember that people are the entire focus of ministry. The Lord is gracious to allow small opportunities to have a great impact, and only He can give the increase. Just recently, my son was able to pass out an entire box of New Testaments to a field of nearby farmers harvesting their fields. We only pray that a change might be instilled and that their lives may be changed for the better.

We also had the pleasure of having my mother here for the holidays. Her presence proved to be a great blessing in support and prayer, as a few short days before Christmas, I was rushed to the hospital three hours away for an appendectomy. As unexpected as it was, we are grateful to say the recovery process has been smooth.

In the turn of the new year, we already see many opportunities of ministry ahead. With the annual youth conference fast approaching, we have a week left for any final preparations. We are also anticipating the soon arrival of the three gentlemen who first purchased the land on which the conference center is located. Their investments have been vital over the years and their visits are always a blessing.

As we look forward, please continue to pray with us for discernment towards the future. It is so vital that we don't make any steps in a direction that is away from His will, and we can only wait patiently in the knowledge that His timing is perfect. Thank you for your faithful support in prayer and resources, and we eagerly step into this next chapter and the unknowns that lay in store.

For His Glory,
The Lane Family
